

How to quote a price for a custom-made distribution box

AI Overview

The cost to quote a custom-made distribution box typically ranges from a few hundred to several thousand dollars, depending on specifications, materials, and features.

Factors Affecting the Quote

- Material and Enclosure Type Distribution boxes can be made from ABS plastic, powder-coated steel, or high-grade stainless steel. Basic plastic units are inexpensive, while industrial-grade stainless steel enclosures can cost significantly more due to durability and corrosion resistance.
- Internal Components The price increases with the inclusion of circuit breakers, surge protectors, busbars, and other protective devices. An empty shell is cheaper, but a fully equipped box with high-quality components can multiply the cost.
- Voltage, Amperage, and Circuit Capacity Higher voltage ratings, larger amperage capacity, and more circuits increase the complexity and cost of the box.
- Customization and Features Custom options such as specific mounting configurations, labeling, integration with building management systems, smart monitoring, and remote control capabilities can significantly raise the quote.
- Installation and Labor Professional installation is often the largest part of the total cost. For residential upgrades, labor can range from $1,300 to $1,800, while complex industrial setups may involve weeks of labor and additional permit fees.
- Environmental and Compliance Considerations Weather-resistant or outdoor-rated enclosures, as well as compliance with UL, CE, or CCC certifications, can add to the cost.

Typical Price Ranges

- Residential Units: $200–$1,000 for standard single-phase or small three-phase systems.
- Commercial/Industrial Units: $1,000–$10,000+ depending on size, material, and integrated features.
- Smart Distribution Boxes: Often double the cost of traditional panels but can provide long-term savings through energy monitoring and...
