

Professional Manufacturer of Tubular Busbar Installation

AI Overview

Leading manufacturers of tubular busbars include SYKATEC, Promet AG, Alcomet, Hydro, and Gordon Kitto Limited, offering customized copper and aluminium solutions with full installation support. Key Manufacturers and Services SYKATEC GmbH specializes in flexible and durable busbar systems, manufacturing copper and aluminium busbars tailored to customer specifications. They provide modular prefabrication, complex shapes, and assembly of DC link rails, ensuring low installation effort and high reliability. Their services include deburring, galvanizing, sawing, punching, and bending, with fully documented manufacturing processes for quality assurance. Promet AG offers precision-manufactured busbars in copper, aluminium, and Cuponal. They provide end-to-end support from material selection to construction and economic optimization. Their automated production ensures high precision, efficient material use, and customized solutions including cutting, milling, welding, and finishing. Alcomet provides copper and aluminium tubular busbars for 33kV, 66kV, and 132kV substations. They supply a full range of connectors, including rigid, expansion, and tee types, with bespoke connections available. Their in-house technical team assists with substation drawings and project quotations. Hydro manufactures extruded aluminium busbars and tubular conductors for OEMs and panel builders. They offer solutions optimized for current capacity, heat dissipation, and low weight. Hydro supports cutting, drilling, punching, bending, machining, and assembly to simplify installation, with customizable specifications for alloy, conductivity, dimensions, and surface finish.
